HEAAU02 Langue et culture du monde anglophone au choix

Responsable : M. Gilles Teulié

Les étudiant.e.s choisiront une option parmi un bouquet proposé par l'équipe enseignante sur des thématiques variées en études culturelles du monde anglophone.

En 2020-2021 :

1. South Africa: From apartheid to a free multicultural society (M. Teulié)
Mots clés : South Africa, apartheid, multicultural

This seminar aims at understanding the mechanisms which led a country such as South Africa to develop a system of racial segregation and then to abandon it to follow the path to freedom and democracy. The session will be divided into three parts:
(1) South African History from early SA up to Apartheid
(2) Apartheid
(3) Postapartheid South Africa.

Students will be asked to have a good knowledge of the history of South Africa, to be able to understand the different aspects of apartheid racial segregation and to understand the modern developments of that country. The written final exam will be based on the analysis of several documents that will encompass all the aspects studied during the semester. Hamba Khale (see you in Zulu).

2. British Cultural and Public Diplomacy in the 20th Century (Mme Byrne)
Mots clés : United Kingdom, international relations, history, cultural diplomacy, cultural relations, internationalism

This course offers an introduction to the theory and practice of cultural diplomacy from an historical perspective. Beginning in the interwar period, it tracks the development of new approaches to international relations through World War Two and the Cold War up until the 1960s when cultural and educational diplomacy became a plank of UK relations with postcolonial states. The focus is on British foreign policy responses to the challenges of the twentieth century but international influences and the creation of bodies such as UNESCO are also considered.to the theory and practice of cultural diplomacy; study of British foreign policy responses to the many challenges of the twentieth century.
3. US economy: current trends and issues (M. Cadinot)
   Mots clés: United States, economy, industry, agriculture, trade agreements
   Study of textual, graphic and video documents.

   Mots clés: Critical geography, geopolitical hotspots, Commonwealth countries
   This course examines the contemporary “geopolitical hotspots” of the English-speaking world through the lens of critical geography to better understand such pressing social and political issues as the impact of Brexit, of populist politics, of growing economic inequalities, latent territorial disputes, and the global environmental emergency on selected countries of the Commonwealth, including developed, developing and small island states. It takes the form of a current affairs observatory using a range of electronic and archival resources.

HEABU02_A Langue et culture du monde anglophone

Responsable : Mme Alice Byrne

Les étudiant.e.s choisiront une option parmi un bouquet proposé par l’équipe enseignante.
En 2019-2020 :

1. Place branding (Mme Byrne)
   Mots clés : branding, nation, city, identity, regional development, international relations.

   Place branding is about constructing or developing place identities as a means of projecting a positive image to an external audience. It is used in a variety of fields including urban planning, tourism, sustainable development, cultural policy and international relations & communication. Its practitioners can be found in the public and private sectors.

   This course will provide students with an introduction to the theory and practice of place branding primarily through case studies from across the Anglophone world: New Zealand, Canada, the UK, India and the Caribbean. The course will cover the following topics:
   - The origins and development of place branding; key concepts.
   - Different forms of place branding (nation branding, city branding, destination branding) and related practices (public diplomacy, geographical indications).
   - Place branding and the Global South.
2. Temporary art, contemporary questioning (M. Phelan)

Mots clés : controversy, empowerment, redress, representation, visibility

The aim of the course is to examine how ‘contemporary art’ (and all art that is 'in the news') acts as a forum for social debate. The term ‘contemporary art’ refers to the visual arts (painting, sculpture, installations, performance, and so on), but our course will also examine issues arising from the fields of theatre, cinema and music. The fields studied and the ‘case studies’ will vary depending on what is currently in the news. For example, the 2019-20 course focused on street art, on African art and its relation to post-colonialism, and on the place of women artists and of Afro-American art in the newly designed display of the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) collection in New York.

3. Brexit: Causes and consequences. (M. Calvini-Lefebvre et Mme André)

Mots clés : Brexit, Euroscepticism, Britian, Transatlantic relations, political imagery, economic models, social structures, constitutions

Why were 52% of British voters in favour of leaving the European Union on 23rd June 2016? This course will try to go beyond the usual explanations, that point to the lies and deceits of the campaign or populist anger, to try to identify the deeper political, economic and social issues behind Brexit. It will also address, through critical and analytical reading of the latest academic and journalistic texts, the likely consequences of Brexit for the political, economic and social systems of the United Kingdom.

4. Contemporary US Foreign Economic Policy: Globalism Challenged? (M. Stricof)

Mots clés : United States, economy, international relations, globalization

At the end of the Cold War the United States led the world in a globalized system defined by free trade. Through its part in the creation of the World Trade Organization, the inclusion of China in the global system and numerous bilateral and regional accords, the US worked to implement a rules-based international system that would ensure the free flow of goods and services. This direction has always faced a number of challenges, from anti-WTO protestors, individual product “wars,” less enthusiastic allies, and the concerns of environmental responsibility. After decades of consistent policy preferences, the Trump administration’s “America First” rhetoric has taken challenges to global economic systems to the White House, raising questions about the consistency of American policy now and in the future, and what this may mean for the global trading system.

This course will:
- Provide a brief historical overview of American foreign economic policy, especially since the end of the Cold War
- Study several challenges to this system over the same time frame
- Interrogate contemporary questions within this context
