A faculty focused on education and research opened to the world

Our Faculty has world-class and internationally recognized research in all subject areas, ranging from the arts to neuroscience. Committed to conveying a humanist culture, it enables its students to enrich their education by opening up to the world through academic and research collaborations with renowned partner universities in Europe and the rest of the world.

Mobility as a vector of citizenship

The CIVIS platform will bring together nearly 400,000 students and 55,000 staff. This integrated university space aims to enable students, academics, researchers and staff to move and collaborate as freely as in their home institutions.

We envision our European Civic University as a space for innovative and responsible teaching, research, cultural exchange and citizen action in Europe, from the Baltic Sea to the Mediterranean Sea and Africa.

The desire for inclusion will permeate all our actions, as we are fully committed to the fight for gender equality, non-discrimination and social equality.

The participation of our universities in this alliance will help to reduce inequalities, increase access to quality education and create real opportunities for success for all our students.

International Office on Campus ALLSH

International Relations in Aix-Marseille University are managed centrally by a department located on the Aix-en-Provence campus. For greater efficiency, the management has reception centres for students and teacher-researchers at the various university sites, and delegates (teachers, administrative staff) in the components.

The International Relations Department of Faculty of Arts and Humanities is located at the first floor of the Egger Building. The office implements our faculty's international cooperation. It is responsible for managing the mobility of its students, lecturers and staff.

Intertandem Program

Are you a foreign student and want to meet French students to learn French and discover French culture?

The Intertandem program is made for you!

This program allows you to meet during 6 meetings a French student willing to practice your language and teach you his mother tongue.

You are free to choose when and where you want to meet your partner. A tutor meets with you at the start and end of the program to give you advice in discussions and define objectives.

Free registration before September 25, 2020
